To my friend friend,

Dear friend,

This is my last note before I head home. It is Biscuit Gingerwhiskers, writing from my very last hiding spot in your house (a good one, wasn't it?).

I want to thank you for a wonderful visit. Every night I flew home with a report full of kind words, good tries, and helpful hands. Every morning I could not wait to pick a new hiding spot, because you always looked for me with such a big smile.

On Christmas Eve I will ride along with the sleigh one last time and point right at your rooftop. Listen for the bells. And remember: the magic you showed all season — kindness, trying, caring — does not need an elf to keep going. It lives in you.

Same time next year? It's a promise.

Door hangers

Cut along the dashed lines, punch a hole, and hang them anywhere an elf might rest

The Elf Is In!

Knock softly. Reporting in progress.

Elf Napping

flew all night. Back in the morning.

Tip: cardstock works best. Tape a ribbon through the hole to hang.
